

ALEXANDRIA, VA.

MONDAY EVENING, JULY 10, 1882.

EGYPT is inevitably destined, it seems, to become a famous battle ground in our day, and ere this is read the combined fleets of therefore null and void. The Mahoneites, Europe may have opened fire on the fortifications of Alexandria. Where this trouble will end no one knows, and divers gloomy forecasts are drawn by those posted in the present political condition of the land of the Pharaohs, Among the present circumstances which give such grave importance to "the Egyptian Question" the following seem especially to call for mention: The intimate connection of the future of Egypt with the impending fall of the Turkish Empire; the creation of a new route to India by the making of the Suez Canal; the financial collapse of Egypt, originating the present Anglo-French financial control; the conflicting interests of England and France in Northern Africa. As regards the first of these problems of practical politics, the downfall of the Turkish power in Europe can only be a question of a few years. Now the question is, when "the sick man" at last dies, and his possessions are scrambled for by a number of hungry and not over scrupulous heirs, to whose share is Egypt to fall? Neither Germany nor Austria, nor even Russia, if once in possession of Constantinople, have any special interests in Egypt; but with England and France, to say nothing of Italy, the case is different; the question of the virtual possession of Egypt being to England, a vital one. The vast importance to England of the question who is to have dominion over Egypt, arises from the existence of the Suez Canal, which has made the latter country practically the key to India. With that key in any other hands it would be in perpetual danger. Lord Palmerston was not blind to the political consequeces of the scheme when it was first mooted, and opposed its execution. In spite of English opposition the great work was finally accomplished, and the ca- ding for all such careers as his has been. nal opened. So long as England could manœuvre to keep Egypt under the nominal suzerainty of the Porte, her interests were secure, as the Sultan hasn bee for years a mere puppel in the hands of the British ministry; but the Ottoman empire being now in its last phase, there is nothing left for England | independentism and Mahoneism in Virginia, the but to use her strong arm instead of her for- difference is only in the name. Accommodate the strong arm instead of her forthe financial collapse took place, out of which the Anglo-French financial control | consideration of the contested case of Stovall and the present crisis have both originated. But the financial difficulty is not the only morning, Mr. Cabell, the contestee, arguing one likely, sooner or later, to bring England and France into collision in reference to ably seconded by his counsel, Mr. John Egypt. THE DECISION of Judge Weleford in reference to one phase of the Virginia debt is not at all surprising. The constitution of the State, as well as that of the United States, says the Legislature of Virginia "shall pass no law impairing the obligation of contracts," and as the holders of Virginia bonds purchased them with the express understanding that the proceeds of the sale of Virginia's interests in her internal improvements were to be appropriated to the payment of those bonds, it did not require any professed knowledge of law to decide that the bill appropriating the proceeds of the sale of Virginia's interest in the A., M. & O. R. R., to the establishment of negro normal schools and for making up deficits in delinquent State funds was unconstitutional, and or rather the few intelligent men of that party, knew this when they passed the bill referred to, and only passed it as a cheap means of inducing the negroes to believe that they were sincere in their professions of regard for them.

JUDGE WELLFORD, of the Richmond Circuit Court, in deciding the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio $500,000 case on Saturday, gave it as his oppinion that the appropriation of the fund by the late legislature could not be legally made, because the acts, so far as they seek to appropriate the sums of money so derived, impair the obligations of the contract credited with the creditors of Virginia, by their acceptance of the terms and provisions of the act of March 30, 1871, and the act amendatory thereof, and are for this reason repugnant to both the Constitution of the state of Virginia and the Constitution of the United States, and consequently void. The decision is in effect that the amount received by the state for its interest in the Atlantic, Mississippiand and Ohio Railroad, $500,000, must go toward the payment of the bonds issued under the Funding bill of 1871

IT APPEARS now that Senator Kellogg, the last carpetbagger in the Senate, not be ing content with holding a fraudulent seat in that body, and with availing himself of all the facilities such a seat offer an unserupulous man for bettering his own pecuniary condition at the expense of his country, was induced by the rapacity characteristic of his class to take part in the star route swindles and that he will probably be indicted for that crime, and may possibly leave his seat in the Senate when his term expires, next March, for one in the penitentiary-a fit en-

From the indications the amendment to the river and harbor bill appropriating $500,-000 for the Potomac flats improvement, offered by Senator Ransom Saturday, is likely to be adopted, but this is not entirely certain, as some of the Senators, including the chairman of the committee on commerce, seem determined to defeat it if possible.

The Hicks-Lamb-Hartigan. Sowers controversy over the Guiteau autopsy is still in progress. To refute the Rev. Mr, Hick's asertion that he dismissed Drs. There is great excitement at Statesville, North Carolina. On Saturday last Ex-Congressman W. M. Robbins made a political speech and commented on the administration of Dr. J. J. Mott, ex-revenue collector. On Thursday M. L. Mott, son of Dr. Mott. assaulted Robbins, injuring him severely. From this sprung an assault by William Stockton, revenue officer, on Joseph Adams, State solicitor, breaking Adam's arm. John E. Osborne, a dry goods clerk, expressed indignation, when C. S. Cooper, brother of Thomas Cooper, the present revenue collector, abused Osborne roundly, when the latter drew a pistol, and fired twice at Cooper, wounding him twice painfully but not dangerously. The matter is to be at once investigated in the courts.

A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company, dated Alexandria, yesterday evening says: "Naval officers have made a reconnoissance and reported that they saw the Egyptians mounting heavy guns on Marabout Island, on the western side of the entrance to the harbor. The Schuylkill River Poisoned.

Thousands of dead fish are lying on the island, against the piers, and along the banks of the Schuylkill river from Reading east, and thousands out, it is said, of an abandoned copper mine. The numerous other of his followers, taking all change of water was first noticed Friday evening. Saturday morning the water looked like soapsuds, and late Saturday afternoon it was of a deep blue color. There is no doubt as to its being poisoned, and many have stopped using their hydrants, Hundreds of people have visited the river banks, and there is much indignation. The reservoir at Philadelphia is full, and if nothing unforeseen occurs no water from the Schuylkill will be pumped into it until next Friday, before which time it i hoped the water will become pure again. One of the theories advanced to account for the pollution is that the Paris green scattered over the fields by farmers to kill potato-bugs has been washed into the river by the recent rains. The unbealthy condition of the water was discussed by the park commissioners at a meeting Saturday afternoon.

It is feared that Philadelphia will soon be suffering from the same condition of affairs as the people of Reading and Pottstown, and it is proposed to take insection. to take immediate action to prevent such a misfortune. There is much excitement over the POLAND BECOMING GERMANIZED.-Journals of Prussian Poland lament the rapidity with which the country is becoming Germanized. This, together with the fact that German is the This, together with the fact that German is the official and judicial language, is enough to crowd out the original vernacular.
